PAYING FOR THEIR HOMES

The Land Agent's Office Is Daily
Siegled by the Anxious-to-Pay-Up
Applicants—Rifles Needless.

Fort Dodge, Ia., Jan. 22.—Scores of river land settlers who were deprived of the last shadow of title to their homes by the recent supreme court decision are now making efforts to purchase the lands, and the office of the Litchfield agent is besieged daily. The agent announces that a schedule of prices ranging from $25 to $35 an acre will be fixed and the settlers will be given the first chance. Two years ago half that amount would have bought the same land. Jacob Crouse, one of the most belligerent of the settlers, has given up the fight and is negotiating to purchase the land he has titled. Present indications are that the rifles recently distributed among the settlers will not be used and those who do not purchase will vacate peacefully.

NO HELP FOR THEM

Patients Roasted Alive in a
Burning Hospital.

SCORES IN THE AWFUL FIAMES

The National Surgical Institute at Indianapolis Destroyed—Nineteen of Its Inmates Perish.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 22.—The surgical institute burned Thursday night at midnight. Nineteen helpless, crippled children, inmates of the institution, lost their lives, and twenty other persons were injured, some of them badly; most of them slightly. Two hundred and forty-six patients and thirty nurses, sleeping in the two four-story buildings at the corner of Illinois and Georgia streets, in which the institute is located, were in imminent danger of their lives.

A fearful story. Their rescue, the fight with the flames, and the final discovery of the charred remains of the poor, dead children wrapped in each other's withered arms, make a story rarely paralleled in the annals of modern cities. It was almost on the stroke of 12 when Janitor Gill gave the alarm, instantly followed by the second and third. The telephone had conveyed to the chief the news that the building of all others where fire was dreaded was in flames. This meant no ordinary danger. It proved to be a holocaust.

The Dead.
At 9:30 a. m. there were nineteen dead bodies. Some were killed by jumping, but the others were suffocated or burned to death. The list of identified dead is:

Irma Payne, aged 13, Deater, Mo.; Minnie Arnold, aged 17, Lancaster, Mo.; William Ramstead, 17, Milwaukee; Mrs. E. Bear and child; Mrs. Lassar, Chicago; Stella Spire, G. M. Ellis, aged 40; Kate L. Straughan, relatives at 104 Massachusetts avenue, Boston; nephew of St. Paul, Minn.; C. H. Gorman, McDonald, Mich.; Hannah Brook, Taylorville, Ill.; Frank Dockendorf, Sullivan, Minn.; Minnie McDonald, Neenah, Mich.

Missing and Injured.

Mrs. M. K. Lump and Arthur Bayles are missing. Injured: Minnie Lassure, aged 7, leg broken; Mrs. H. H. Edens and son, both severely injured; Mrs. Thomas, 144 Massachusetts avenue, burned about the face and body, in terrible agony; Fannie Broder, Memphis, Tenn., burned in a dozen places; Mrs. J. R. Ould, Medaryville, Ind., internally injured by a fall from the ladder, probably fatal; Mary Stearns, Warren, Pa., severely burned about the face; William H. Alsbach, Dunkirk, N. Y., slightly burned; Leora Knowles, Independence, Ind., back hurt by jumping out of third-story window; M. W. Wyder, Troy, O., internally injured by falling out of a window while trying to escape; William Mansfield, Osgood, N. Y., foot hurt while jumping; Mrs. John S. Stokes, Danville, Ill., sprained ankle; Nellie Mason, of Walworth county, Wis., jumped out of third-story window and will die from her injuries; Mrs. C. J. Simpson, a little girl, tried to get from second story window; E. Connor, fell from the second to the first floor, serious if not fatal internal injuries; W. M. Widener, Miami county, O., terribly crushed and fatally injured; Roy Harris, New Orleans, not seriously hurt.

Origin of the Fire.
The fire started just before midnight, and the first alarm was quickly followed by second, third and fourth calls. From all that can be ascertained it is probable that the fire originated in the room where the printing matter, circulars, etc., were kept. This is on the ground floor in the rear of the main building. Mrs. Copeland, one of the rescued attendants, said that an hour before the alarm of fire was turned in the night watchman came to her room and asked her if she was burning paper. She told him that she was not and in a few minutes he again asked her. This proves that the fire had been smoldering for some time.

Scene of Horror.
When the department arrived, from the second, third and fourth story windows women clad in their flowing night robes were clinging, crying out in their horror and desperation at the prospect of death either from the roaring, crackling flames or from a jump to the ground below. The scene as it appeared to those who first reached the place is one that will never be forgotten. The flames as they burst from the Georgia-street annex and gradually encroached on the main building shed a lurid light over the surrounding buildings and cast a dark shadow on the street below. And above the furious roar of the flames could be heard the awful screams and agonizing groans of the poor, tortured women and girls who clung to the window sills with their bare fingers.

Rescuers Work Boldly.
Strong arms were soon to the rescue and words of encouragement were spoken to those above. Ladders were raised to the windows and the work of rescuing those in the rear end of the building began. It was here that the flames raged most furiously and it was necessary to get the endangered inmates down without delay. In a very few minutes all those who had been seen at the windows when the department first arrived had been rescued, but while the work was going on one or two women, driven to desperation by the fierce heat and the thought of a horrible death, leaped to the ground, to receive injuries from which they cannot recover. There were volunteers by the hundred; brave men who risked their lives time and time again in the brief period of fifteen minutes to save the lives of poor crippled children, the sight of whom in the midst of the fearful holocaust caused strong men to shudder and grow sick at heart. Tenderly the rescued were carried to some temporary refuge and placed under the care of kind hands, where the best physicians of the city were ready to lend their aid.

A Death-Trap.
The citizens are strong in their condemnation of the gross negligence of the management of the institute in the matter of exit, the building having only a narrow hall and staircases and being a death-trap. The owners will undoubtedly be censured in the investigation.

The building was owned by Drs. Allen and Wilson, and the furnishings are estimated by Dr. Wilson to have been worth $25,000. The furnishings, including valuable appliances for all kinds of cripples, are a total loss, but the front building was partially saved. The loss will aggregate $200,000, with insurance of $150,000.

Young Kinship's Experiences.

Said William Kimball, a young man with both legs crushed from the knees down and his head thrown to one side by a distorted shoulder joint: "I was sleeping on the fourth floor. I don't know how it was, but I awoke with a sense of strangulation. From less than a foot above my head and up to the ceiling was a dense mass of smoke. I just pulled out of bed. I could not move about with my braces, so I took them off, lying curled upon my side. It was so hot I thought I was going to die. I called as loud as I could. Help, help, help. Just then there was a crash at the door, and a big colored man fell over me. He picked me up bodily, dashed through the halls and down the stairway and brought me here. God knows I am thankful."
